The biggest changes in blood glucose and insulin levels usually happen within the first two hours after eating.