"we think research will advance, and we think therapy will be part of a larger solution to helping kids recover from trauma," he says.

north korea performed its first underground atomic weapons tests in october 2006.

bengali is the common language spoken and understood by all—both patients and medical professionals.

the healing powers of vitamin c, long championed by nobel prize-winner linus pauling; and discounted by conventional doctors; have become mainstream gospel